britain was rapidly emerging as the most powerful european nation a position france long believed to be her own yet with france still commanding the largest continental army britain saw its best opportunities for expansion lay in the east yet as britains influence increased through its official trading arm the east india company the ruler of bengal nawab siraj ud daulah sought to drive the british out of the subcontinent and turned to france for help the ensuing conflict saw intimate campaigns fought by captains and occasionally colonels and by small companies rather than big battalions they were campaigns fought by individuals rather than anonymous masses some were heroes some were cowards and most of them were rogues on the make the story is not only about robert clive a clerk from shropshire who became to all intents and purposes an emperor but also about eyre coote an irishman who fought with everyone he met about alexander grant a jacobite who first escaped from culloden and then flashman like was literally the last man into the last boat to escape calcutta and the infamous black hole the fighting culminated in robert clives astonishing victory at

plassey where just 3 000 british and sepoy troops defeated siraj ud daulahs franco bengali army of 18 000 in the space of only forty minutes the victory at plassey in 1757 established britain as the dominant force in india the whole of which gradually come under british control and became the most prized possession in its empire few battles in history have ever had such profound consequences britain was quickly overtaking france as the most powerful country in europe a position france had long thought to be hers however because france still controlled the strongest continental force britain believed its best chances for growth were in the east nawab siraj ud daulah the ruler of bengal attempted to expel the british from the subcontinent as britain s power grew through its official commercial arm the east india company and he turned to france for assistance intimate campaigns were conducted during the ensuing conflict by captains occasionally colonels and small companies rather than large battalions individuals not anonymous hordes fought in these conflicts some were heroes others were cowards and the majority were rogues in the making alexander grant a jacobite who first escaped from culloden and then flashman like was literally the last man into the last boat to escape calcutta and the infamous black hole are also featured in the story in addition to robert clive a clerk from shropshire who became effectively an emperor eyre coote an irishman who engaged in combat with everyone he met and alexander grant a jacobite who first escaped from cull robert clive s astounding victory at plassey where 3 000 british and sepoy troops destroyed siraj ud 18 000 strong daulah s franco bengali army in about 40 minutes marked the end of the fighting following the victory at plassey in 1757 britain assumed a dominant position in india why are we facing never ending terrorism political violence and terrorism have been literally bleeding humanity throughout the world this book sheds light on terrorism highlighting the causes of this evil including religion wealth disparity poverty dysfunctional government and the crippling lending policies of international financial institutions in particular it highlights one major gray area not discussed by conventional writers the colonial legacy this book highlights every aspect of political development from the birth of new nations to the race for supremacy the impact of scarce mineral resources the role of religions the shia sunni turmoil in the middle east and last but not least the militarization processes are all discussed greed allows terrorism to take root and to be nurtured it leads the religious to be abused and innocent people to be victimized by war s profiteers this guide simplifies history for class 9 learners through easy summaries timelines flowcharts explanations of important events solved exercises key terms and extra practice questions designed for effective revision and deeper understanding it prepares students thoroughly for exams for five centuries the development of capitalism has been inextricably connected to the expropriation of working people from the land they depended on for subsistence through ruling class assaults known as enclosures or clearances shared common land became privately owned capital and peasant farmers became propertyless laborers who could only survive by working for the owners of land or capital as ian angus documents in the war against the commons mass opposition to dispossession has never ceased his dramatic account provides new insights into an opposition that ranged from stubborn non compliance to open rebellion including eyewitness accounts of campaigns in which thousands of protestors tore down fences and restored common access to pastures and forests contrary to many accounts that treat the reorganization of agriculture as a purely domestic matter angus shows that there were close connections between the enclosures in britain and imperial expansion
