exploring the entanglement of religion and psychotherapy in twentieth century scotland far from being washed away by the tide of secularization that swept post war united kingdom one of the ways in which christianity in scotland survived and transformed itself was by drawing on the alliances that it had built earlier in the century with psychoanalysis and psychotherapy psychoanalysis was seen as a way to purify christianity and to propel it in a scientifically rational and socially progressive direction this book draws upon a wealth of archival research to uncover the complex interaction between religion and psychotherapy in twentieth century scotland it explores the practical and intellectual alliance created between the scottish churches and scottish psychotherapy that found expression in the work of celebrated figures such as the radical psychiatrist R D Laing and the pioneering psychoanalyst W R D Fairbairn as well as the careers of less well known individuals such as the psychotherapist Winifred Rushforth key features uncovers the hidden alliance between psychoanalytic psychotherapy and Scottish Christianity exposes the continuity running from Christian discourses practices and organizations to New Age spirituality in Scotland draws on extensive archival research on key figures such as R D Laing and organizations such as the Davidson Clinic

Thinking through Fairbairn offers parallel perspectives on Fairbairn's work. It explores an extended interpretation of his psychology of dynamic structure and applies that model to a number of different areas. Fairbairn's Scottish origins are explored through his relationship with the work of Ian Suttie and Edward Glover. A new extended object relations model of fantasy and inner reality that reflects Fairbairn's approach as represented by his contribution to the controversial discussions is also developed in cooperation with Paul Finnegan. This version of Fairbairn's model is applied to an understanding of multiple personality disorder or dissociative identity disorder. This model is combined with Fairbairn's theory of art to provide an understanding of some puzzle films based in trauma and dissociation. Fairbairn's theory is presented here as a synthesis of classical and relational approaches and his appropriation by relational theorists as a precursor to exclusively relational approaches challenged. The deep structure of Fairbairn's object relations model is developed through a detailed comparison with Glover's ego nuclei model. Fairbairn's nuanced view of instinct and affect is investigated and some parallels with neuropsychoanalysis developed. Finally some ways that the developed model might be further enhanced to become a general model are suggested.

Ronald Fairbairn developed a thoroughgoing object relations theory that became a foundation for modern clinical thought. This volume is homage to the enduring power of his thinking and of his importance now and for the future of relational thinking within the social and human sciences. The book gathers an international group of therapists, analysts, psychiatrists, social commentators and historians who contend that Fairbairn's work extends powerfully beyond the therapeutic. They suggest that social, cultural and historical dimensions can all be illuminated by his work. Object relations as a strand within psychoanalysis began with Freud and passed through Ferenczi and Rank, Balint, Suttie and Klein to come of age in Fairbairn's papers of the early 1940s. That there is still life in this line of thinking is illustrated by the essays in this collection and by the modern relational turn in psychoanalytic theory. The development of attachment theory and the increasing recognition that there is no such thing as an ego without context without relationships without a social milieu.

For more than one hundred years North American Christians have been choosing one of two stories about the gospel of Jesus Christ. One story, often referred to as the 'true gospel', holds forth a narrative that this world is a sinking ship without possibility of redemption for adherents to the 'true gospel'. Human suffering in this life is mostly a distraction to be ignored for all that truly matters is to win souls for Jesus so that as many as possible can be assured of eternal life. The other story, known by many as the 'social gospel', holds that the gospel of Jesus promises a new beginning in this life that includes the possibility for abundant life in this present world. Followers of this story devote themselves to alleviating human suffering and working for charity and peace prior to the civil war these two stories of salvation in this life and salvation in the life to come were one never to be separated together comprising the good news of jesus christ when the roll is called recounts the traumatic tearing asunder of this beautiful good news and offers hope for the restoration of a whole gospel
